

Let's knock Intarsio off its pedestal!

By Chris Watkins

This is a follow-up to my article "Let's put Intarsio on a Pedestal" (Magazine June, Number 115)

It's a story of something that no club member would want.

An accident in the hallway led to my Intarsio geese flowerpot 3143 leaving its pedestal and smashing to the ground. It shows the disadvantage of having a tiled floor. 20 large pieces, and a lot of small ones. The restorer said it was a £400 job.

Where's that lottery ticket?

I didn't think I had a role of reducing the Shelley legacy!

(I wonder if David can bear to print this)

(Of course he can Ed)■
